“Getting to the Heart of Communication”

Social Skills Groups

Our Social-Cognitive Groups are designed to help school-age children develop and generalize social-pragmatic language and play skills into naturalistic, peer-driven environments. Small group size allows participating children ample opportunity to learn through observation, focus on specific skill areas that are difficult and practice those skills with peers in a safe supportive and encouraging environment. The groups allow children to receive feedback regarding successful and unsuccessful communicative attempts and build self confidence.
